Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice – Crime Analysis

Program Overview

A bachelor's degree in criminal justice can lead to a variety of career paths. That's why Indiana Tech offers three areas of specialization: administration, crime analysis, and rehabilitation services.

The crime analysis specialty was designed to meet the growing need for professionals who are capable of analyzing crime and intelligence data. The curriculum blends criminological theory with the use of computer software and analytical techniques to explore methods of predicting, preventing, and controlling crime.

We have small classes and do not have lecture halls. Because of this, our instructors are able to connect with students on a one-on-one basis. We are able to employ a variety of teaching styles to enable all students to take full advantage of our program's opportunities.

We promote an engaging learning environment which means students will be active participants in their classroom endeavors. Students complete crime scene investigations, forensic analysis, and practice interviewing/interrogation strategies as part of their coursework. Our forensics lab, which is housed in the university's new Academic Center, provides students with real world experience in the area of criminal investigation.

To encourage future job success, the Center for Criminal Justice encourages student internships at the local, state, federal and private level.

Experts in crime analysis may find themselves:

- Using computer mapping software to track criminal activity
- Using forensic data and statistics to create suspect profiles
- Providing special reports on crime prevention
- Preparing maps, graphs and reports to determine patterns and trends in crime

Graduates may find positions in organizations such as:

- The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI)
- The Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA)
