Bachelor of Science in Human Services

Program Overview

Broadly defined, those who enter the human services field seek to improve the overall quality of life of various populations through the prevention and remediation of problems. The populations human services professionals work with most commonly are children and families, the elderly, immigrants, veterans, the homeless and people with disabilities, criminal records, addictions or mental illnesses. As such, Indiana Tech has constructed a robust curriculum that addresses topics in the areas of addiction, gerontology, social policy, public communication, crisis management and case management.

If you are a compassionate individual who is called to use your natural talents to help others, a degree in human services will teach you how to use your positive energy in ways that can be life-changing.

Why choose Indiana Tech:

- Online classes begin every six weeks at Indiana Tech. Take one class at a time and make rapid progress toward program completion.
- Personalized support from start to finish, including assistance with degree audits and coordinating military educational benefits.
- No extra fees for books—textbook rental is included in tuition and books are shipped directly to you.
- Unlimited Yellow Ribbon tuition waivers for eligible students
- Additional college credit may be granted through the evaluation of Military School Partnerships including CCAF and JST, further reducing the number of credit hours to complete a degree.
